

Delegates Nominate Ten

"The urge to rebel is a basic human instinct," commented Iowa State Treasurer Paul Franzburg to over 300 conventioners last night as Wartburg's 1968 Nominating Convention began.

"The right to dissent must be upheld," he continued, "but along with the right to dissent is the rights of others.

"There is more power, more talent, more capabilities in this room than any of you can imagine. I believe your generation can be the hope of mankind."

Convention chairman senior Richard Bringewatt opened the nominations after convention rules had been accepted.

Nominees, along with the number of votes received on the first ballot, are: junior Paul Nelson, nominated by Vollmer House, 62; senior David Wild, nominated by Off-campus, 61; junior Kenneth Smith, nominated by Alpha House, 37;

Junior Steven Quam, nominated by Clinton II South, 33; senior Ronald Hall, nominated by Centennial III, 28; junior Gary Nielson, nominated by Clinton Ground South, 15; junior Roger Gutmann, nominated by Clinton II South, 13;

Junior Billie Eden, nominated by Chellevoid Hall, 10; junior Sammy Macwan, nominated by Vollmer Hall III, 9; and junior Clifford Lee, nominated by Clinton II South, 8. There were three abstentions.

Nelson Believes In Broader Gov't

By STEVE SCHLARMANN

Paul Nelson is a candidate for student body president who believes that student government must be viewed in a broader sense than it is now. Just dealing with social activities, in his opinion, is not enough.

Nelson said he advocated greater emphasis on academics. He stressed the development of the student in areas not served by the classroom. "This would serve," he said, "to bring about a realization of what the role of the student actually is in the college." He continued by saying that this, in turn, "would help to determine the role of student government in college life."

Should Be Defined

Among his aims, Nelson believes that a written statement should be made clearly defining the relationship of the student to the institution of Wartburg College.

In his opinion, a written statement of student rights and privileges, and another defining the role of student government in its relation to the institution, should also be made. Thus, the student and student government would definitely know where they stand.

Nelson added that a basis for student government must be contained within this last statement. "Outside of precedence," he said, "there is no real reason for student government here at Wartburg."

Has No Basis

He explained that student government currently has no adequate constitutional basis. In his opinion, the questions of where student government derives its power and what it is to do are not answered satisfactorily in our present constitution.

Nelson gave as his second aim a "compilation and codification of rules and regulations by which the college community lives." He does not believe that unwritten rules and laws of tradition are enough.

As a result of this belief, Nelson has proposed a revision of student government. He said that he is "convinced the present constitution is entirely inadequate for our work." His plan is to discard the old constitution and to build a new one from the ground up.

In this new constitution, he commented, "would be a provision for a new legislative body composed of people elected from the housing units and from the respective classes. This constitution would also contain a provision for the removal of officers and a statement of student rights."

Nelson Adds

Nelson added that he would also like to explore the possibility of a "free university" here at Wartburg. This system, he explained, is virtually a "college within a college." In the free university, according to Nelson, students work with an instructor, apart from the university proper, to set up courses in their own particular area of interest. These courses are noncredit and purely voluntary.

In Nelson's words, "the concept of a free university should not be overlooked at Wartburg College." He added that it is currently being employed at Drake University and in Wartburg's sister institution, St. Olaf.

By STEVE SCHLARMANN

Ken Smith said Friday that his main concern for running for Student Body President is "to establish a pattern of negotiation for Wartburg College student government."

Smith said he is also concerned with the policy of student government. Student government, in his opinion, is currently a "transfer government." It picks up information and opinion from one party--the student body--and transfers it to another party--the faculty, Board of Regents or administration--which makes decisions and establishes policy.

His plan has basically three parts: to form a diplomatic corps, employ written briefs with bills and to expand the diplomatic connections between the community and student government.

According to Smith, this diplomatic corps would consist of five to six students, who would in turn contact 12 to 15 members of the faculty and administration.

The faculty or administration members selected should be influential and in favor of the particular proposal then before the Red, white and blue dominate the Knight's Gymnasium, scene of the 1968 Wartburg Nominating Convention, which began last night.

Smith Wants To Establish A Pattern Of Negotiation administration for its consideration.

They would thus act as a "built-in-lobby" within the faculty and increase the proposal's chances of being accepted.

Smith commented that although there are currently members of the faculty who are sympathetic to student government, they are unorganized.

He believes his plan would serve to give them a degree of organization.

This corps would also serve to inform faculty members of the issues at hand in the particular proposal before them and explain the student government stand on these issues.

Write Brief

The second step of Smith's plan calls for writing a brief for every proposition selected. This brief would be a "clear-cut statement of the proposal's contentions," showing their validity and consistency. It would also explain the objectives of the proposal, and list both the proposal's advantages and disadvantages.

Smith's third aim is to expand the diplomatic communication between the community--including the Church, parents and prospective students in addition to the surrounding community of Waverly--and Wartburg's student government. In doing this, Smith believes that the student government will find both support and opposition.

The point he stressed, however, is that the opinion of the community may be considered by the faculty in making some of its decisions.

Thus it is better to know what the community thinks and to attempt to answer their fears and criticisms so that the student government will then be prepared to answer when the administration informs it of the community's feelings concerning an issue.

Accept Or Overrule

Smith went on to say that the current action taken on a bill by the faculty and administration is to either accept it or overrule it and suggest modifications. The bill is usually then dropped.

Smith believes that the bill should not be immediately dropped, but rather reconsidered by the student government.

The bill's rejection by the faculty or administration could then be either accepted or overruled and the bill perhaps modified. This, Smith commented, would put the senate in a better psychological position since it would then be the last one to deal with the bill, and not the administration.

This would move student government up to a "never drop the issue until we agree to" status.

If the senate voted to overrule the rejection, Smith gave 5 alternatives which would then be open to them:

1. Officially declare their opposition.
2. Renew the efforts of the diplomatic corps and expand its membership.
3. Work for support from the community and the alumni.
4. Strengthen the brief on the bill by uncovering the administration's reasons for the rejection and then answering them in the revised brief.
5. Illustrate student support by peaceful, extra-legal means, such as picketing or demonstrating.

Campaign Is Of Ideas

When asked of his campaign, Smith said that it is basically one of ideas and confrontation between ideas, rather than one of posters and buttons.

He prefers an immediate clash of ideas and presenting his ideas to the people. "If they like my ideas," he commented, "they will vote for me."

Steve Quam Gives Views And Objectives

By STEVE SCHLARMANN

Steve Quam, candidate for student body president, gave a statement on some of his views and objectives for student government recently.

One of his goals is to "increase the respect and effectiveness of student government by the institution of better representation." In Quam's opinion, there is currently a degree of non-representation of students, and this whole issue needs taking care of.

Students should be represented by someone who knows them. This is done through housing unit constituencies. However, Quam added that these can be effective only if student government works to make them so.

He believes that senators should take the issues which arise to their constituency. Some arrangement should be made for the senators to show that they are representing their people and so that these people can know whether their senators are representing them.

Increase Accomplishments

Another of his goals is to "increase the accomplishments of student government through mature communication between student government and the members of administrative branches."

Quam says that the senate should take a responsible position on everything with which it deals. He mentioned that experienced people should be called in when needed, such as the faculty when they are involved in the matter being considered.

The administration should also be consulted on matters requiring their opinion.

He emphasized that the senate should take issues seriously and consider every facet of the issue before taking action. By doing this, student government will gain respect in another quarter.

Believes In Getting Done

Quam believes in getting done what needs to be done by being reasonable. He also believes that the administration will respect this position.

"After all," Quam commented, "the main point of student government is not to make a lot of noise about what it is doing, but rather to actually get it done."

In the words of a letter to the SBP convention delegates, Quam wrote that "respect from the administration comes too from the knowledge that the decisions, when reached, are decisions which student government believes are worthy of consideration and which the Student Body President, in the lead, will take every conceivable step to achieve.

"Because in the end, no matter where it leads, if need be, to serious conflict, the student government and particularly the SBP will stand totally for the students!"

Quam added that he doesn't think student government should have to yield anything within its own jurisdiction.

Is Full-Time Job

He commented that the office of SBP is a "full-time job." He believes that "diplomatic communication" is the best way to get things done in this job with the people with whom the SBP must deal.

Quam learned of the merits of this kind of communication while holding the chairmanship of the homecoming committee, which, he said, is approximately the same size as the student senate.

He commented that being homecoming chairman is a full-time job for the length of the homecoming celebration.

As homecoming chairman, he said that he encountered many roadblocks, but never had to yield on them. He explained that talking the matter over usually accomplished what was necessary.

Likely To Cooperate

He commented that "if they (administration) respect your sincerity and opinions, they are most likely to cooperate."

Quam summarized by saying that many of his aims deal with building up student government and its prestige. This would have the effect of increasing enthusiasm in student government, and thus "win new power to get new things done."

Quam added that he also believes there are certain areas being currently overlooked where the individual student could benefit.

He continued by saying that he has ideas concerning these areas which he has researched, discussed and believes to be workable. He refrained from elucidating upon these ideas until they are released in his platform, and said only that student government can help students in their own convenience, comfort and pocketbook.

Editorial

Please Excuse Trumpet

Please excuse the Trumpet if you believe that it has been rather silent editorially in regard to the Student Body President elections soon coming forth.

There are two reasons for this. First and foremost, the Trumpet is not backing one candidate this year, but hardly because the Trumpet editorial board members are undecided. We believe that it would be a gross journalistic sin for a college newspaper involuntarily supported, in part, by student funds, to declare a preference in such an election and thus give such a candidate unfair coverage and publicity.

The Trumpet is planning to redeem itself after last year's embarrassing situation under the staunch leadership of last year's editor.

No One Blamed

Secondly, after last year's ridiculous fiasco, no one can be blamed for not being too fired up over a Student Body President election. Due to careful planning by a few responsible and hard-working people on this campus, the mechanics of the nominating convention should be a success.

Wartburg Band Praised For Dedication, Work

To the Editor:

There is an organization on this campus which has been working hard all year to bring music and enjoyment to students of Wartburg College and to people of the community of Waverly. The 57 members which make up the Wartburg College Concert Band are among the most dedicated to be found in any musical organization on campus.

The recent "Band-Aid Follies" was a result of concentrated effort on the part of Dr. Robert E. Lee and student director Ruth Gerdes, as well as the entire organization. It displayed a great deal of fine talent and exemplified the versatility of the Concert Band.

Review Is Needed

I, for one, would have liked to have seen a review of the "Follies" in the Trumpet. Be it praise or criticism, the Band would accept either. Both are a form of acknowledgement.

The Wartburg College Concert Band has been performing far more than any other musical organization on campus. Since the beginning of the year, the Band has given four formal concerts and two outdoor concerts on Homecoming and on Parents' Day. They were on hand for every one of the football games played in Schield Stadium last fall.

Band Performance Again

The Band performed again at the dedication of the Becker Hall of Science. And there was a pep band at every basketball game played in Knights Gymnasium. Eighteen band members even managed to take their instruments to Westmar for the playoff game.

I think that this is a fine display of loyalty and dedication on the part of the Band members to the Band and to Wartburg College. I think that it is a little sad that we must look to ourselves for gratitude and encouragement.

But I would like to say "thank you" to my fellow Band members for helping to make the Wartburg Concert Band the fine organization that it is. Keep up the good work!

Bleakley Letter Criticized; Baseler Likes Editorial

To the Editor:

After a hard day of washing feet, I noticed in the Trumpet a certain letter to the editor demanding a public apology of the editor for his editorial concerning pre-theological students at Wartburg.

I think the editor hit the nail on the head this time, and I hope he never gives a public apology to anyone. Mr. Bleakley is apparently unaware of the overwhelming lack of involvement of pre-theological students on the Wartburg campus. Outside of the usual purely religious activities of most pre-the's like Chi Rho, Venite, devotions, campus church, Mission Fellowship, LSA, etc., "wimps" (to quote the editorial) completely shelter themselves from the world.

And then when a pre-the does get involved in politics (which is worldly), look at the job he does! (Just for the record, isn't Bleakley the student body president we forgot to plug in?)

I'm terribly sorry that some pre-the's took offense to this editorial, but it's about time we all get with it and start digging the scene, man. Maybe the "church is doing everything it can do to adequately equip the pre-the," but what is the pre-the doing himself?

Is he going to become a naive, soft-soap, saintly, pulpit-pounding Christian pleaser? Or is he going to be a dynamic, prophetic, down-to-earth pastor? Only time and better self-evaluation will tell. But that editorial wasn't an extremely short-sighted or a feeble attempt. It was the truth and if the shoe fits: WEAR IT!

Alumni Heads Speak

"Wartburg -- What's That?" will be the theme of a program which the past, present and future presidents of the Wartburg College Alumni Association will present in convocation Monday, March 18.

Giving their views on what Wartburg students can expect after graduation will be the Rev. John E. Keller of Chicago, alumni president; Dr. Stanley N. Graven of Madison, Wis., president-elect, who will assume the top office in May; and Charles Lutz of Minneapolis, immediate past president of the 5,000-member organization.

Wartburg President John W. Bachman will host the program, and Alumni Director Bob Gremmels will present an alumni citation to Pastor Keller.

Purpose of the program, said Gremmels, is to give students a better idea of what it means to be a Wartburg graduate--professionally and psychologically.

"Because Wartburg is a relatively small school in the heart of the Midwest," he said, "it is not uncommon for a new graduate to encounter the rather deflating question, 'Wartburg -- What's That?'"

Keller is a nationally recognized authority on alcoholism, the author of a best-selling book on the subject and chaplain supervisor of a new alcoholism treatment and training center now being erected at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge, Ill.

Dr. Graven, who made national headlines several years ago as a result of his research on "tired children," heads a new neonatal research center at the University of Wisconsin Medical School and is a practicing pediatrician.

Lutz is director of the Center for Urban Encounter in the Twin Cities, a position he accepted last year following 10 years as editor of the Christian youth magazine "One."

The following week might even be exciting. We might even elect a qualified president, although the Trumpet does not have enough faith in the majority of the student body after last year to believe it is capable of choosing an able president. Maybe next week we will get enthused.

Hope Will Analyze

We just hope that the students will analyze the qualifications of each of the candidates and realize what is important and what is not important in the qualifications of an SBP. Likewise, we hope that the students will not be overly impressed by such publicity as has been plastered on the walls and distributed throughout the college campus. It should take more than money to win the election.

Student government can be exciting, some people try to tell us. A good candidate can make student government come alive, it also has been said. Well, we have been hearing that for a long time.

The responsibility of electing a good student body president lies with the students. We hope you take the responsibility seriously.

Spring Outfly Is Coming

"This spring's Outfly proceedings will be conducted quite differently from that of last year," according to former Social Activities Director Art Alt.

"Thursday evening, students received a paper stating the remaining possible dates for Outfly: March 19-21; 16 or 28; or April 2, 4, 9 or 10.

"These dates are the only ones which do not have special speakers, testing periods or convocations," Alt added.

Schedule To Be Similar

"The schedule of events for the spring Outfly will be quite similar to that used in the past," he continued.

"After a special breakfast, a movie will be shown. Anyone may use the gymnasium facilities during Outfly from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

"Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. If the date chosen is balmy and nice, a community picnic will begin at 3 p.m., consisting of group games such as an egg throwing contest, balloon battles, one-legged contests and baseball. At 4 p.m. there will be a picnic supper."

Dance To Be Held

According to Alt, if the evening weather still permits, a dance will be held on the Outfly grounds, with the Knight Flight providing the music. Fireworks will be featured at this time.

Students desiring Outfly for a certain day should first contact Joe Bleakley, student body president, and ask his permission to hold Outfly for the following day. The Outfly bulletin will give hints as to where Bleakley will be on campus.

All students should watch for the Outfly bulletin, which will be out soon, according to Alt.

"However," Alt added, "this does not mean that Outfly must necessarily be held on the following day.

Levick Leads Top College Cagers Against University Stars

(News Bureau)
A pensive "Buzz" Levick, Wartburg College basketball coach who will pilot the Iowa College All Stars in their game with the University All Stars at Cedar Rapids March 19, will have the first of two work-outs Monday evening.

That practice session will begin at 7 p.m. in the Cedar Rapids YMCA. The University Stars will not drill until Tuesday at 9 a.m. when the College players will also practice again.

The game will begin at 7:30 p.m. that night at the Kennedy High School Gymnasium.

Hearn Is On Roster

Members of Levick's squad include forwards John Hearn of Wartburg, Alex Rowell of Luther, Doug Ferguson of Iowa Wesleyan and Rick Vander Berg of Northwestern; centers John Miller of Upper Iowa, Mike Asque of William Penn and Chuck Von Feldt of Loras.

Guards are Jerry Waugh of the University of Northern Iowa, Dave Mueller of Luther, Mike Schwartz of Grinnell and Pete Hansen of Westmar.

The University All Stars, who will be coached by Glen Anderson of Iowa State, will be headed by two All Americans, Sam Williams of the University of Iowa and Don Smith of Iowa State.

Levick's major concern as he begins preparation for the Tuesday night game is lack of size on the College roster.

Miller, Asque and Von Feldt are 6-4, 6-6 and 6-5 respectively, but the biggest of his forwards is Hearn, who is 6-3.

However, he can compensate somewhat with Waugh at guard.

Recently named to the NCAA College division Olympic cage team, Waugh also stands 6-3.

Has 4 Top IIAC Scorers

Featured on Levick's roster are four of the top seven Iowa Conference scorers of this year.

UIC's Miller led the league with a 24.3 average; Luther's Mueller was second with 22.4; Rowell was fourth with 21.5; and Hearn was seventh with 18.8.

Rowell, Hearn and Ferguson also totaled more than 1,500 points each during their four-year careers.

Waugh paced the North Central Conference in scoring with a 25.7 average and was a unanimous choice for All-NCC.

Spring Sports Reviewed

By JIM KEIFER

Winter is about over and spring is just around the corner. The track team already has begun its indoor season. The baseball team is practicing in the gym. Coach Oppermann has to find a replacement for Bob Meyer, who was the stalwart of the mound staff last year. Sophomores Tom Cain and Steve Koch are expected to pick up the slack. The baseball team also needs a couple of .300 hitters to go along with John Hearn.

The golf and tennis teams also have a lot of rebuilding to do. Norm Johansen's golf team has to rely mainly on underclassmen to carry the team. The tennis team has to practically start from scratch. They not only were hit with graduating seniors, but also were hurt by transfers, and Greg Heist is someplace in Asia.

After reading this, one might think that our spring sports teams aren't going to have much of a chance. But with the fine coaches we have and some hard work, they should be able to keep up with the fine showing our winter sports had.

Tennis Squad Lists Only Two Lettermen

By TOM DAHLEN

Wartburg's young tennis squad began practice in the wind this week, aiming for its first meet with Luther on April 3 at Decora. In his first season as coach last year, Melvin Kramer helped the team finish second in the conference meet.

The team's record was 6-4. Last year's best two men won't be playing this year. Jim Wagner is attending another school and Greg Heist is in the Peace Corps. Ken Barr and Rich Medlar, last year's numbers four and five men, graduated. Jim Beam, seventh man last year, is out for golf this year.

Two Lettermen Return

The only returning lettermen, Wes Schaller and Tim Schumacher, will see limited action this year. Schaller, last year's third man, injured his foot and will be out for a month. Schumacher, number six last year, will miss the meets during May because of participation in the touring drama group.

The squad is large now, comprised of sixteen men. It is a young team, having six freshmen, three sophomores, five juniors and two seniors. Eight states are represented on the team.

Squad Is Listed

The seniors are Jim Schultz of Milton Junction, Wis., and Pete Sherer of Bridgeport, Mich. The juniors are Bob Charleston of Bucyrus, Ohio; Dave Fietz of Forest City; Roger Gutmann of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Schaller, of Beaver Dam, Wis.; and Schumacher, from Madison, Wis.

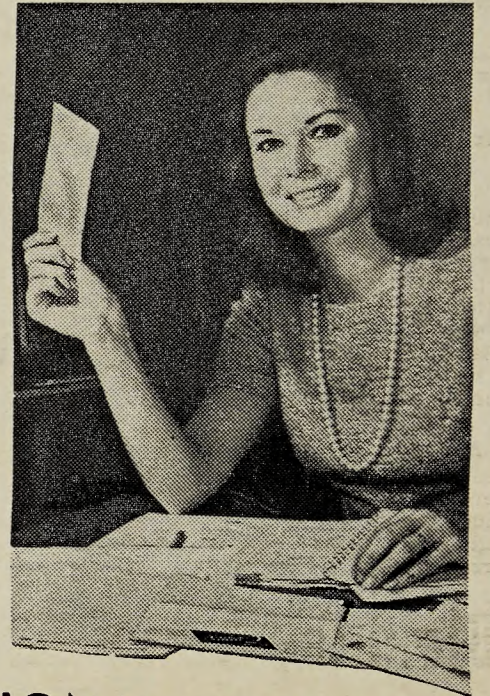

The sophomores are Fred Henkelmann of Pigeon, Mich.; Paul Kinnes of Denver, Colo.; and Dave Westphal of West Des Moines.

The freshmen include Paul Frederick and Val Gies of Waverly; Mike Kraus of East Moline, Ill.; Kurt Wandrey of Mason City; Dick Winchell of Waverly; and Ron Yockim of Williston, N. Dak.

Wartburg's courts are the finest in the conference, but there will be only two meets here this year. This year's conference meet will be May 10 and 11 at Buena Vista.

Wartburg Participates First In ALC Comparative Study

Wartburg College was the first of the ALC colleges to participate in a study being conducted by Glen E. Peterson, a graduate student at Michigan State University.

Peterson, a staff member at Augustana College, has taken a leave of absence to complete his doctoral degree in the field of Student Personnel Administration. He is conducting a study which evaluates and compares the student services of all the colleges of the American Lutheran Church.

Has 2-Day Visit

In his two-day visit to the Wartburg campus on March 11 and 12, Peterson interviewed the faculty members as well as a number of students which he had earlier selected at random. The students and faculty completed a detailed questionnaire evaluating the student services which Wartburg offers.

Said Peterson, "A number of similar studies have been conducted before on our church campuses, but this is the first such study to involve students and student personnel staff as well as the faculty members."

He added that the Board of College Education of the American Lutheran Church is helping to sponsor the study.

Hopes To Complete

Peterson hopes to complete his research data, which will comprise the basis of his dissertation, some time in April. He stressed that the results of the study will be available to the college by next school year.

Peterson summed up his visit to Wartburg by saying, "It was a gratifying experience and I appreciated the excellent cooperation which I received from both the students and the faculty."

Closet Produces Smoke, No Fire

A possible fire in Wartburg Hall brought the Waverly Fire Department out at 9:45 p.m. Thursday.

Sometime between 9 and 9:30 p.m., a girl on third floor emptied her wastebasket into the large trashcan in the hall closet. As she closed the closet door, she noticed smoke in the hall. Reopening the door, she could smell smoke in the closet.

The trashcan, taken from the closet, revealed no smoke. The smoke was concentrated in a corner of the closet which is used for supply storage. Residents of the hall removed these supplies and detected the smell of wood burning.

Wartburg's head resident, Mrs. Bette Tellefson, was called. After evaluating the situation, she decided to call in the Fire Department before any real damage could occur.

A thorough investigation of the building turned up only a few pieces of charred paper in the bottom of the waste can.

During the investigation, dorm residents stood in the lobby and other Wartburg students surrounded the building. As each fireman entered, the onlookers said, "Third floor," and returned to speculation as to the possible outcome.

The probable cause of the smoke, according to Mrs. Tellefson, was the smouldering of the papers in the waste can. The girls on that floor did an hour to hour check of the closet all evening but no recurrence of the smoke was evident.

Library, Den, Bookstore Open During Venite

Action was taken at last week's faculty meeting regarding the recommendation that the library, Den and bookstore be open during the 10 o'clock Thursday Venite service.

This request originally came from the student senate and was approved by the Convocation, Venite and Student Welfare Committees, who presented the recommendation to the faculty.

According to Pres. John W. Bachman, the faculty was sharply divided because of inconclusive evidence on this issue.

He added, "The faculty realizes that important problems concerning worship at Wartburg College are being overshadowed by heated disagreement concerning the secondary issue of the closing of certain facilities during the Venite hour."

For this reason, the faculty decided to open these facilities temporarily until more basic questions are resolved.

"The library, Den and bookstore will, therefore, be opened during the remainder of this school year, by which time it is hoped that there can be a resolution of the central issues," concluded President Bachman.

Lee Named Music Head

NEWS BUREAU -- Dr. Robert E. Lee, director of bands at Wartburg College, has been named the new chairman of the Music Department here.

He will succeed Dr. Edwin Liemohn, who plans to retire this spring after 22 years as department head.

Also announced at the same time was the appointment of Dr. James E. Fritschel as choir director.

Dr. Fritschel, who currently directs the college's Castle Singers and Oratorio Chorus, will be only the second director the choir has had since its founding in 1937 by Dr. Liemohn.
